WHITE MAN'S ROLE UNDERGOING GREAT CHANGES IN ASIA

For Hundreds of Years Asia Looked To West To Develop Resources

'NOW "NOT WANTED" Movement Toward Independence Could Be Most Important In Decade

For hundreds of years Asia has looked to men of the west to develop its resources, manage its commerce and run its industries. But Asia is changing—and more and more western business men are finding "not wanted" signs where once they were welcomed.

The following article by Howard Handelman, far eastern director of International News Service, is the first of three discussing the white man's role in Asia, the growth of far eastern nationalism, and what it means to the western world. Material for these articles was obtained by the author in a series of trips throughout the Orient, including visits to the Philippines, Korea and China.

By Howard Handelman, Far Eastern Director, INS

TOKYO, Nov. 12 — (INS)—"Asia for the Asiatics" has been changed rapidly from a slogan to an accomplished fact, affecting half the people of the world.

The movement toward Asiatic independence could be the most important trend of the decade of the 1940's.

India, Burma, the Philippines and Indonesia already have achieved their independence — are out of the "white man's reservation."

Indo-China is going. China, the great heart of Asia, has turned to communism.

The tremendous upsurge of nationalism in the Far East was released by the lost war of the Japanese Empire.

It has been fed and nourished by the "cold war" between the Soviet Union and the west.

Asia, with its minerals, its manpower and its strategic geography, has direct effect upon the progress of the "cold war" and is one of great stakes in the struggle.

But to the Asiatic, the "cold war" is not his problem, despite the advance of communist ideology and

Needlework Guild Members Hear of Work Among Phila. Unfortunates

REV. SIMONS, SPEAKER

Assembling to hear reports of the year's work, and listen to an inspiring message of work among the unfortunates of Philadelphia, members and friends of Bristol Branch, Needlework Guild of America, also viewed the 1949 exhibit of garments yesterday. The gathering, at which 1,391 garments were displayed, took place in the community house on Dorrance street, and the speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. James Simons, of the Fifth Street Community Center, Philadelphia.

The guild president, Mrs. Walter W. Pitzonka, called upon the Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James Episcopal Church, to offer prayer; then drew attention of the group to the six names appearing on the honor roll, in view of the fact that they had gathered 100 or more garments for the guild work. Ancker, 103; Miss Jennie Chambers, 102; Miss Florence Chambers, 102; Mrs. L. J. Bevan, 100. The latter is in charge of the memorial gifts. Work of Edgely and Bristol sewing groups was also commended.

The president, after mentioning that last year's total was 1,623, informed that three-fourths of the garments were distributed in Bristol and vicinity, the balance being divided among orphanages, hospitals and homes. She added that two families who lost most of their goods by fire had been outfitted with guild items; and that a number of ill persons had been provided with new clothing, and several layettes.

GLASS BLOWERS WILL BE SEEN IN ACTION

Howell Family To Demonstrate Such Art At Burlington School

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

BURLINGTON, N. J., Nov. 12 — "Forever Blowing Bubbles" is the appropriate slogan for the versatile Howell family, the famous Bohemian glass blowers, scheduled for an appearance at St. Mary's Hall, here, this evening, at eight o'clock.

The Howells have demonstrated their art before camps, clubs, lodges, churches, hotel audiences, and in many public and private schools throughout the country. Their demonstration is open to the public as the sale of some of their articles.

Bohemian glass blowing is one of the quaintest and almost forgotten branches of the glass industry. It includes the making of many beautiful ornaments such as animals, birds, and flowers without the use of tools or molds. A high school superintendent, commenting on the Howells' program, said: "The Howells have a remarkable understanding of children of high school age. They hold the interest of the student throughout the entire program."

The various chapters of the St. Mary's Alumnae are preparing for their fall and winter meetings. Miss Florence Lukens Newbold, headmistress of the school, and Mrs. Otto R. Eichel, chairman of the Loyalty Club, continued on Page Two

10-INCH WATER MAIN BREAKS AT CROYDON

Forces One Industrial Plant To Close Down; Several Families Minus Water

STRUCK BY WORKMEN

CROYDON, Nov. 12 — A 10-inch water main was broken here yesterday at 11:45, with the result that one local industry was forced to close down for the day, a number of families were minus water for several hours, and the level of water in the storage tank at Bristol dropped five feet.

Cause of the break, according to acting borough engineer Livingston Joyce, is that the main was struck as employees of the state highway department was engaged in work of laying a sewer pipe to drain a portion of Cedar avenue from State road to Main street.

Bristol Water Department employees were summoned and remained on the job until after eight o'clock last evening. Croydon Fire Co. members aided by pumping water from the ditch, and Bucks County Rescue Squad provided floodlights after dark so that work would not be hampered.

Pressure dropped to such an extent that the plant of Philco Corporation was closed for the balance of the day.

Houses along Cedar avenue, from Pennsylvania avenue to State road, and in some other sections were without water after the "shut-off."

WORSE THAN LENIN

Lenin would have turned over in his glass coffin if he could have heard the oratory reverberating over his mausoleum in Red Square during ceremonies celebrating the thirty-second anniversary of the bolshevik revolution. Lenin was an exile who wished to transform Russia — as Peter the Great did before him — by importing what he considered the best of western thought. But his Soviet Union is now in the hands of men whose fear of the West is exceeded only by their ignorance of it. G. M. Malenkov, fastest rising member of the all-powerful Politburo, unfolded before his Moscow audience a grotesque picture of the outside world. The United States, he said, now has 14,000,000 unemployed and is being shaken to its foundations by economic instability. Countries outside the Iron Curtain are full of slaving warmongers, architects of a new war, who differ from Hitler only in being worse. The peoples of these countries, realizing that the end of capitalism is in sight, are embracing communism in ever-increasing numbers. The Soviet Union and her friends stand alone for peace, but if they are forced to fight, they will win. In Malenkov, in Stalin, and in the men whom Stalin permits to survive in his government, the outstanding characteristic is ignorance of the outside world. Their information about how capitalism works comes straight out of Marx. If the facts appear to contradict it, then the facts must have been manipulated by capitalist trickery. That is what makes them far more dangerous than Lenin ever was.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT

Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, the brand new chief of naval operations, in his first "policy" utterance to reporters, pledged himself to "keep naval aviation strong." But he added a qualifier: "As strong as the financial situation will permit." There is no doubt that the new naval chief is taking over a shrinking charge. Last July there were 271 ships of all types in active service and 727 in the mothball reserve fleet. By next July there will be 237 ships afloat and 751 laid up in reserve. The proportion of carriers in comparison to other categories of combat vessels being laid up is high. Where Admiral Sherman is going to halt the bites into naval air power remains an enigma. If the size of the fleet by next July (which would include about a dozen carriers, perhaps six carrier air groups, and about 27 patrol and anti-submarine air squadrons plus a dozen Marine squadrons) is enough to make the nation strong, fine. There is no doubt that the Defense Department is as eager as anyone to give Admiral Sherman smooth sailing in his new job. Affairs around the Pentagon seem to be of the sweetness and light variety. Admiral Sherman will do his utmost to keep them that way.

White Man's Role Undergoing Changes In Asia

armed might in China, Burma and Indo-China. Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India spelled this attitude out in simple language and repeatedly during his visit to the United States. The main points he has made are: The rising tide of Asiatic nationalism cannot be stopped. India will not identify herself with either the communist or capitalist camps. India will support nationalistic movements anywhere in Asia. India will not be adverse to taking the leadership in a Pan-Asiatic movement. Japanese foreign office experts on Asiatic affairs tell International News Service that Nehru is the spiritual and political leader among all non-communist Asiatics, and that southwest Asia particularly would follow his lead. The intensity of the nationalistic fervor in Asia can be seen in many countries. The Philippines supply the most pointed example. Filipinos were given the advantage of the most enlightened and least demanding western control. United States did its best to be a "good parent," promised independence and was the first of the western powers to grant it. Politically, the Philippines still are grateful and close to the United States. But on the lower level of business, Americans send reports of resentment against American ownership of Filipino business and of Filipino efforts to force Americans to give up their holdings. In Burma and in India, each granted independence by the British, nationalism has been kept alive on slogans warning against infiltration by British capital. In all these countries colonialism is a known quantity, long experienced, long hated and long feared. The sleeping giant of Asia is lumbering onto its feet. (Tomorrow: Growth of Anti-Foreignism in Asia).

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

It has often been said that the outcome of any meal depends to a large degree on the amount of effort put into it. However, although good cooking and the use of energy are so closely linked that it is difficult to separate them, it is possible to design easily prepared meals which require little physical labor. Barbecued beef, prepared according to A & P Service for Homemakers recommendations, is one such meal. The ingredients of this dish involve little extra effort, yet virtually insure maximum results. First, dredge one and one-half pounds of beef, cut into one-inch cubes, in seasoned flour. Slinger one-half cup of minced onions and one-fourth cup of chopped green peppers in four tablespoons of fat, add the meat and brown thoroughly. Pour barbecue sauce over the meat, cover tightly and cook over simmering heat for one and one-half hours. At this point you should be sure to stir the beef frequently to prevent its sticking. Also keep the heat low. This main course will provide four or five ample servings. Precede the barbecued beef with some chilled fruit juice, and serve the dish itself with buttered lima beans, whipped potatoes and a tossed raw vegetable salad. A dessert of vanilla custard over sliced bananas will provide a fitting climax for this application of energy and imagination.

distributed. Mrs. Pitonka told that Girl Scouts who meet in Bristol Methodist Church are making flannel baby sacks.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of four directors who died during the past year, namely Miss Mary J. Haines, Mrs. M. J. Hill, Mrs. Therna Webb and Mrs. Sheridan B. Metz. A bouquet of chrysanthemums which graced the president's table was sent by Miss Eunice Williams in memory of her mother, Mrs. Griffith L. Williams, who had served as guild treasurer some years ago.

The Rev. Mr. Simons held the rapt attention of all as he told of one activity after another at the Fifth Street Community Center, Phila., which he directs. He told of the "band-box" houses where many a family consisting of parents and several children, live in one room; and continued by telling of the resultant social evils and sin from overcrowding, and the desperate poverty of the families who are aided. The women were interested to learn that there are dozens of nationalities and faiths represented in the men, women and children who attend the center's countless activities. "Fifty per cent of the people coming to us are Catholic; 12 per cent are Jewish; and the rest are divided into many faiths and nationalities. Recently we had a great increase in those of the Episcopal faith, and I learned that they were migrant workers who stopped in for meals or other aid enroute to the southwest."

One statement of the Rev. Mr. Simons was: "If there were no liquor nor dope problems we would have no job at the mission as far as men are concerned. We are mainly in business to help people spiritually, but we follow the four-fold program of aid to a well-rounded life, spiritually, physically, mentally and socially." The countless programs carried on, every evening in the week, and throughout the day-time hours, were mentioned. "The men and women start gathering at four o'clock in the afternoon for the eight o'clock service. They come early to get warm and mingle with others. Their homes, oftentimes have no light or heat, and their furniture is decrepit." In speaking of the overcrowded conditions, the clergyman told of visiting one house recently where 11 families, with 35 children, live. The Phila. city planning group's preparations to eliminate large slum sections was mentioned as a God-send. "We are trying to develop a moral background in which people will try to do better," he commented as he told how families with very low incomes could not possibly get along without aid from someone else. The manner in which people in some parts of the city live was vividly portrayed when the speaker told how some parents arouse their children each morning and send them out to "rustle" breakfast—"stealing a loaf of bread here and a bottle of milk there." That new garments given by the Needlework Guild, and used garments from other sources provide not only warmth and covering, but a "lift" was mentioned. "We never have enough clothing for men. On the first day it snowed last winter we gave out 41 overcoats." The guest also mentioned that a new dress or suit for school children aids in cutting down truancy.

Minutes were read by secretary Mrs. Paul V. Forster; and treasurerer's report presented by Mrs. Harold Crocker. The group was addressed briefly by a past president, Mrs. Henry E. Ancker. Cup cakes and coffee were served by Mrs. A. D. Morris and Mrs. Lester D. Thorne.

Bristolian Marries Phila. Miss; Sacred Heart Wedding

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12 — At a Sacred Heart wedding ceremony, with the nuptial mass solemnized in St. Dominics R. C. Church, this morning at 11, Miss Julia DeAngelis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter DeAngelis, this city, was united in marriage to Mr. Michael Della, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Della, 209 Otter street, Bristol. Mr. DeAngelis escorted his daughter to the altar, where the Rev. Fr. Daley performed the ceremony.

Bridal gown was of beaded white satin; her veil was long and attached to a beaded crown; and she carried three white orchids. As Miss Diores Ferraro, 222 Lafayette street, Bristol, a niece of the bridegroom, sang "Mother at Your Feet in Kneeling", the bride placed a bouquet of white blossoms at the feet of the statue of the Blessed Virgin. The church choir also offered selections.

The company of young women attending the bride wore velvet gowns in American beauty tone, trimmed with white ribbon. They were styled with off-shoulder effect; and the bonnet type hats featured white plumes. Slippers were of silver, and each attendant carried a bouquet of white carnations with an orchid at the center. The bridesmaids were Mrs. William Della, Washington street; Miss Doreen Long, Miss Mary DeAngelis, sister of the bride, of Philadelphia; and maid of honor, Miss Laura Capella, Philadelphia.

Attending Mr. Della as best man was his brother, Mr. William Della, Washington street, Bristol; and ushers were Messrs. Gene DeAngelis, brother of the bride, and Paul Alesi, both of Philadelphia.

Mrs. DeAngelis, mother of the bride, wore a dress of brown crepe trimmed in satin, brown accessories, and a lavender orchid. Mrs. Della was attired in black crepe trimmed in satin, brown accessories, and her corsage was also a lavender orchid.

The social events scheduled following the ceremony are a breakfast served at the DeAngelis home; dinner for the bridal party at five at Verdi's Restaurant; and evening reception at Dreamland Academy. The newlyweds will then leave for 10 days trip to Miami Beach, Fla. Their place of residence will be 209 Otter street, Bristol.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were rhinestone necklaces. Mr. Della, who served for two years in World War II, 18 months of that period being spent overseas, gave the best man a marcasite tie pin; and the ushers cigarette lighters. The bridegroom is employed at the A. & P. Market, Bristol.

Oh God, whose never-failing love surrounds us throughout our earthly lives, make Thyself very real to us when we are tempted to doubt Thee. RED ROSES WILL PLAY ST. ANN'S
HERE TOMORROW

The Norristown Red Roses will be the attraction on Memorial Park field tomorrow as the St. Ann's A. A. eleven plays another independent game. Kickoff will take place at two o'clock.

The "Saints" have an open date in the conference schedule receiving a forfeit from the New Delphia team.

The Roses defeated the Purple and Gold last season by a close 7-6 score. The Roses are coached by Jack Sommers, formerly of the Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams. He graduated and played with U.S.L.A.

Most of the Norristown lineup is composed of players who played with Norristown, Conshohocken and Upper Merion High. Included in the lineup is "Walt" Hertzog who was a guard with Temple University several years ago.

The Roses will field a team that will average at least 200 pounds with Nomi Rossi and Mike Wasko in the backfield. These boys tip the scales at 205 and 207 pounds, respectively.

Joe Carlin, who formerly played with the 82nd Airborne Division, will be at the off tackle position. He weighs 220 pounds while on the other tackle will be Don Pasquale, the heaviest boy on the team, 225 pounds.

Thus far this season the Roses have played Lancaster Presidents, Roseto, Coplay, Blue Bell.

St. Ann's is in first place in the Northeast Conference with six wins and a defeat. It has also won its only independent game played.

Coaches Pete Bornice, Salvatore Seneca, and Joe Roe have named the following as the starting lineups: Ends, Howard Keys and Stan Lelinski; tackles, Al Sozio and Luke Wade; guards, Tom Profy and Buster Monachello; center, Elwood Mount; backs, Joe Elmer, Leo Fiori, Joe Napoli, and Bill Marion.

TO SOUTHAMPTON

SOUTHAMPTON, Nov. 12 — Scoring just as the first half whistle sounded, Southampton High girls' hockey team won over Bristol High, 1-0, Thursday.

Play was well distributed during the game. The Bristol forward line seemed to be hindered by the high grass, making its passing difficult. Dot Bailey, captain, played a good defensive game for Coach Barbara Yerkes girls.

Underground Water Drop
Alarms Conservationists

By International News Service
HARRISBURG, Nov. 12—Pennsylvania conservationists are alarmed about the drop in underground water supplies for wells and other needs. Forests and Water Secretary M. F. Draemel blamed the great decrease on "radical improvement in construction of wells, in pumping machinery and in the many new uses for groundwater." He said many Pennsylvanians have the mistaken idea that there is an unlimited supply of water beneath the earth's surface, but "overdevelopment may become evident after a few years of pumping." The Water and Power Resources Board is making a survey to find out what procedures are necessary to conserve below-surface water resources as well as surface supplies. Observations of the decrease in groundwater in states which have compiled data prompted the commonwealth to make its own study.
